Dimethylthiourea, a free radical scavenger, was tested for its ability to prevent the renal and liver damage induced in the rat by paraquat. A single dose of DMTU (75 mg kg-1) given intraperitoneally as 2 h or 24 h after a single intraperitoneal dose of paraquat (300 mg kg-1) prevented the loss of body weight and the mortality rate in the animals challenged with a lethal dose of paraquat. The plasma urea levels were significantly reduced when animals received the DMTU prior to paraquat. The kidney and liver showed histological changes in the animals challenged with paraquat, which were less pronounced in the animals given DMTU prior to paraquat. The results show that DMTU is a useful free radical scavenger in the prevention of paraquat toxicity, and that it may be of value in the management of cases of paraquat poisoning.Research: Both politicians and media find Donald Trump and Bernie Sanders less credible than others There has been considerable press attention surrounding how much voters like Donald Trump and Bernie Sanders, and how they feel about them, but there has been less coverage of how the two politicians compare with others in their political parties. This post and a follow up will explore the results of two new and original studies, published today by Dr. William Mitchell of UCSD, who analyzed data from surveys taken in 2014 and 2015 with more than 2,600 Americans about how they think about President Barack Obama, Trump, Sanders and Hillary Clinton. I analyzed the results and provided a brief explanation of why I think the findings are so interesting and may be a bit confusing at first. If you are interested, you can check out the full studies here and here. The findings The three most trusted politicians, in order, were Barack Obama, Hillary Clinton and Joe Biden. At the bottom of the list were Trump and Sanders. But this doesn't mean that Americans actually think more highly of Trump or Sanders than they do of Obama, Clinton and Biden. The findings, from the first study of this kind, were consistent with my earlier results 2d92ce491b
