Crack.Bluebits Trikker Last Edition Cracked is a small, easy to use and totally FREE PC game software. It allows your computer to play the .Q:

Printing Array of Objects Containing Objects of the same type I have two classes: `public class ColouredObject { public String colour; public String name; }` and `public class Activity { public List ColouredObjects; }` I'm trying to print the ColouredObjects in a way that looks like this:
ColouredObject [colour=Blue, name=shape] ColouredObject [colour=Yellow, name=shape] ColouredObject [colour=Blue, name=speed] so far I've managed to create the two loops to create the arrays: `ColouredObject[] colouredObjects= new ColouredObject[20]; ColouredObject[] activityColouredObjects= new ColouredObject[20];` However I have no idea of how I would write the code needed to print the objects. Currently I have a long block of code doing this using two loops (the first loop adds the colour and the second loop adds the name): `for (int i = 0; i`
